TWO CENTS A POUND

The Proposed Tariff on Zante Currants.

CHANGED AT THE LAST MOMENT

Good Work by Fresno's Committee. The "Expositor" Exulted Over Supposed Defeat.

Yesterday afternoon O. J. Woodward of the First National Bank received the following telegram from Washington:

"Raising 2 1/2c, currants 1 1/2c. Change in house impossible. Better prospects in senate. Start home tonight. Forsyth will stay."

The bad news was soon noted about town and caused general disappointment. There was still the hope left, of course, that the senate would do something for Fresno's great industry, but this outlook made the people feel somewhat dubious. There was no blame for the members of the committee, for it was believed that General Chipman, Colonel Forsyth and Dr. Rowell had done their utmost to have the tariff on Zante currants increased.

While the people expressed regret at this first defeat, there was rejoicing in the "Expositor" office. It could say "I told you so," and it probably laid the flattering unction to its soul that it had done a little toward bringing about the result. It had opposed the appropriation by the supervisors of funds for the use of the committee (it had been decided to send to Washington to fight for a higher tariff on Zante currants; it reflected upon the citizens who asked for the money, and finally showed the board when it granted an appropriation. Enraged because its opposition to the protection of the raisin industry had come to naught, it vilified the members of the committee who had been chosen to look after the interests of the industry by the representative citizens and business men of Fresno. No charges were too foul for it to make. It maintained that the committee would spend money corruptly and charged that Dr. Rowell would give more attention to politics than to the raisin tariff.

It was a happy moment therefore when the "Expositor" crew read the telegram to Mr. Woodward. Their breasts were swelled with exultation as to endeavor the buttons on their vests, and the most venomous rascal on the "Expositor" staff was given the proud assignment of initiating a poem in prose. Extracts from it are herewith reproduced in type of a size befitting such a remarkable production. Says the "Expositor":

"The 'Expositor' has been vindicated in all it said touching the Rowell and Forsyth raisin-tariff trip to Washington. The 'Expositor' predicted from the outset that Dr. Rowell would have too many missions to perform for office-seekers to do much harm to the false pretenses which names a certain raisin Zante currant."

Besides, the "Expositor" knew, as did all thinking men, that if the doctor and the colonel did not stop off at Carson on March 17th they did not leave here soon enough to reach Washington before the Dixie gang would shut off all western missionary work on the tariff questions. Knowing these things, the "Expositor" advised Fresno to waste no ammunition on the atmosphere (house of representatives) but to aim at the true target (the senate).

For this sincere and well-meant advice, all the dastardly, hungry and wedge-headed wolves in the local REPUBLICAN pack, turned their fangs towards the "Expositor." They snarled, snapped and fished in blood-thirsty style, and the REPUBLICAN hissed on every little spike-headed-kennel it could turn loose.

All of which might have been put this way: "Hurray! the 'Expositor' has established its private and political grudges; Forsyth and Rowell have lost. We have had our revenge, and the devil take the raisin industry!"

The "Expositor's" exultation was of brief duration, however. While its "force" was celebrating the bad news that night there came information from Washington that their chops fall. Messrs. Forsyth, Rowell and Chipman had snatched victory from defeat and succeeded in securing a higher duty on Zante currants. But here is the telegram:

"J. W. Short, Editor Republican:—At last moment tonight committee gave us 2 cents on Zante currants. We have won. Tell Woodward. DR. ROWELL."

This excellent news will cause rejoicing in the home of all the Republicans' readers. The rate is not as high by half a cent as it was hoped to have made, but all will admit that the securing of the 2-cent tariff was a substantial accomplishment, when it looked at on time as it would have to stand at the Wilson bill rate. The committee must have done some very hard work indeed during the afternoon to bring about a change of sentiment in the members of the ways and means committee.

The rate finally fixed will afford a fair degree of protection, and there is no one directly or indirectly connected with the raisin industry who will not cheerfully admit that the result attained by the committee will many times repay the expense incurred in bringing it about.

The "Expositor," of course, will lash itself into another rage. It will abuse Messrs. Forsyth and Rowell, disparage their efforts and try to detract from their success. It will show as plainly as it can that it wishes Dr. Rowell's first telegram had portrayed the final situation with regard to the tariff on Zante currants.

KILLING FROSTS.

Apricots and Almonds Destroyed in Many Sections.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 30.—The local office of the United States weather bureau has received advices from the various fruit sections of the state to the effect that during the past two nights killing frosts have seriously damaged the fruit crop. Prunes and apples are not sufficiently advanced to receive any such damage, but apricots and almonds, which in many sections have been totally destroyed, while peach trees and vines have also been injured, though in less degree.

CANNOT BE AVOIDED

WAR BETWEEN GREECE AND TURKEY INEVITABLE.

King George Finds It Impossible to Yield to the Powers Regarding Crete.

CONSTANTINOPLE, March 30.—Reports from the Turkish headquarters at Salonica say the Greek leader, Alexis Faki, brother of the famous chieftain, crossed the frontier into Macedonia Sunday, accompanied by about twenty-five followers.

Near Gevra the Greeks engaged an advance post of Turkish troops commanded by a German officer. The loss to the insurgents is not known. They subsequently retreated across the border into the Greek territory.

It is difficult to see how war between Greece and Turkey can be avoided. It is rumored to diplomatic circles here that King George sent a message to the czar of Russia saying that it would be impossible for Greece to yield to the powers regarding Crete and that it is actually impossible to recall the Greek troops from Thessaly in view of the excited condition of the public mind.

It is believed that even the intervention of Crete would fail to satisfy the Greeks, who are so imbued with the war fever that nothing short of a severe blood-letting will cure them.

The Greeks, it is further believed, greatly underestimate the strength of the Turkish forces in Macedonia and Epirus. Edhem Pasha, the Turkish commander-in-chief, now has at his disposal about 150,000 fighting men and 300 heavy guns. He also has an ample supply of ammunition, a fair commissary and his medical staff and hospital corps are in satisfactory condition.

All the strategic points along the frontier are occupied by newly thrown up entrenchments and other defenses, and are supplied with powerful batteries of artillery. To attack this line of defenses, it is understood, the Greeks cannot muster more than 50,000 men, mostly irregulars, although some estimates here have it that the Greeks may be able to muster 80,000 men in all, counting the hastily armed masses of the raw recruits and rough regulars, which they have been pushing toward the frontier for a month past.

This force is known to be weak in cavalry and especially so in artillery, in which arms the Turks are overwhelmingly strong.

It is true that the Greeks are animated by a warlike spirit and a desire of enthusiasm rarely before witnessed here, but unlike the Bulgarians, who prevailed in the Balkan wars, they have no numerous batteries of artillery. Thus it is that the Turkish officials are calmly awaiting the outbreak of war, if war is to come, confident that they can repel any invader has been taken to meet the emergency.

As to the Cretan situation proper, it is understood that the admiral in command of the fleet, who is in Crete, is of the opinion that now that Greece has virtually completed her war preparations on the frontier of Thessaly, a blockade of the principal ports would be useless, that having only a few dispatches that the refusal of Britain to take active part in the blockade of Greece might lead to the collapse of that scheme to prevent an outbreak of hostilities.

Under these circumstances all the efforts of the ambassadors of the powers here are now being directed toward procuring the withdrawal of the Turkish troops from Crete, as another step to prevent war, and in addition the ambassadors are endeavoring to prevent the Greeks and Turkey from agreeing to the establishment of a neutral zone between the opposing Turks and Greeks on the frontier.

The ambassadors have made strong representations to the ports in favor of permitting the immediate departure of those of the Minotaurians in Crete who have expressed a desire to emigrate, and this will probably be agreed to, but as to the withdrawal of Turkish troops, the Sultan has not yet shown any disposition to submit to that demand.

The Austrian government, upon the representations of the ports, has prohibited the exportation from Trieste of 400,000 cartridges, which were in course of shipment to Greece. The representatives of Greece have protested against this action upon the part of the Austrian government, claiming it is illegal and arbitrary, as no state of war exists. It is not likely that the protest will have any effect.

The work of preparing for the defense of Macedonia is now said to have been completed, and all danger of an attack upon this Turkish base of supplies is believed to have passed.

G. T. McNeely came down from Macedonia last night.

NOW FOR THE VOTE

Last Day of Tariff Debate in the House.

AMENDMENTS IN ORDER TODAY

First Tariff Speech in the Senate. Bill to Relieve Flood Sufferers Passed.

WASHINGTON, March 31.—Party feeling ran high during the last day of the tariff debate in the house. Political speeches were wedged in at every opportunity and there was constant maneuvering for political advantage. The opposition directed their efforts toward stirring up dissension in the Republican side, but they succeeded only in exposing a single instance of revolt today. That was on the subject of free hides. The Democrats pressed the question of a duty on hides for the benefit of the farmer with such vigor that Mr. Hepburn was drawn into the debate and made a strong plea for dutiable hides. He demanded that the house be given an opportunity to vote on this question and declared that every western Republican was in favor of it. Mr. Cannon of Illinois also gave a qualified endorsement to this demand. The Republicans defended their bill today with leaders defended their bill today with vigor.

The ways and means committee held the floor with their amendments from 10 in the morning to 1 o'clock in the afternoon. About thirty-five were offered and accepted. Among them was one admitting free duty "books, scientific apparatus, charts, maps, etc." for scientific and educational purposes. After that five more pages in the bill were taken up, making twenty pages in all of the 102 pages of the bill. Tomorrow the bill will be open for amendment until 1 o'clock, an attempt to amend the bill being allowed after which an hour on a side will be allowed to close. The voting will begin at 8 o'clock. The Democrats displayed a good deal of anxiety today to get in an amendment which they probably were frustrated in this. They probably were frustrated in this. They probably were frustrated in this.

Mr. Bell, Populist of Colorado, warned the Republicans that if they passed this bill, containing high duties, without imposing a duty on hides, they would regret it. Why should the wool men of a few states be so generously dealt with and the cattle raisers denied anything? Mr. Bell's warning was not heeded, and the bill was passed.

QUEST THAT THE PRESIDENT SHALL ALSO INQUIRE into the secret whether the Spanish authorities in Cuba have refused to allow cipher dispatches to be transmitted between the United States consulates and the United States consular general at Havana.

At 2 p.m. the senate went into executive session, and at 5:25 adjourned.

Cutting Affray This Morning.

At 1 o'clock today a man named Calley was stabbed by another named C. Siebelman in front of the Cambridge saloon on Mariposa street. They had been drinking together during the night, and a dispute that arose brought on an altercation with the result that Siebelman whipped out his pocket knife and stabbed Calley in the abdomen once. Siebelman was arrested by Officers Zener and Smith. Dr. Davidson was called to attend Calley, but decided not to probe the wound till morning.

A TOWN WIPED OUT

CHANDLER, O.T., DESTROYED BY A TORNADO.

Many Citizens Killed and Scores Seriously Wounded.—The Work of Rescue.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 30.—A special to the Journal from Guthrie, O. T., says: At 10 o'clock this evening a terrific tornado, followed by hail and flood, swept through the town of Chandler, forty miles east of here, completely destroying the town. Three-fourths of the residences and business houses of the town were totally wrecked or badly damaged, scores of people injured and many killed.

Darkness at once came on and the work of rescue was carried on under great difficulties.

The telephone office was carried away and at 10 p.m. a telephone was connected with the wire two miles thick way, and a messenger sent here for assistance, and a messenger sent here for assistance, and a messenger sent here for assistance.

Up to this time Mr. and Mrs. John Woodman, Mrs. Henry Mitchell, Mrs. Tom Smith, Attorney John Dawson and two unknown persons had been found dead, and fifty had people were known to be badly injured. Mrs. Mary Foster and baby are thought to be fatally hurt.

Chandler is a town of 1000 people, built on a hill in thick timber, and the masses of torn trees and wrecked houses made it impossible to reach near all of the people in the dark. On every side can be heard groans and cries for help and the names of physicians and other persons have left here for the scene with surgical instruments, drugs and other supplies.

A later message states that a large number of people known to have been in the buildings are missing and it is feared they are buried under the ruins. The true state of affairs cannot be learned until daylight.

Missing Vessels.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 30.—Lloyd's agents have received word that the four-masted British ship Lord Dufferin and British bark Bankoline are missing. All hope for the Lord Dufferin is abandoned, there is still some hope for the Bankoline, but very little. The combined crews of the ships numbered 67 men, all of whom are supposed to have perished. Both vessels were in the vicinity of Monterey on the same date, and one of the vessels advanced in that the ships were in collision and went down with all on board before the boats could be lowered.

Insurance Rates Restored.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 30.—The Board of Fire Underwriters of the Pacific decided today to end the long standing and bitter local insurance war and restore the full rate of the old insurance company which went into place three years ago. These old rates will stand only until they can be readjusted to suit changed conditions of various localities.

The Best Principle Applied to Restaurants.

No Waiters to Live or to Sweat At—A

Good Lunch Delivered Without a German Waitress.

Germany is showing the rest of the world how "quick lunches" may be served without employing waiters and how a hungry person may have just what he wants to eat and drink at a fixed price without paying an extra tip and without feeling himself called upon to do more than pay for his meal. In fact, the service is so satisfying to the customer that he is inclined to make his complaint to a mechanical contrivance, which differs from some waiters in so far that it makes no pretense of caring a rap or the turn of a handle how uncomfortable or how badly served the hungry one may be. The contrivance, which has been perfected by the German company of Berlin, is a perfectly original device, even those people who argued to the manner of vending the cups and plates in the ordinary quick lunch places are deprived of their cause for complaint because every customer may supervise the cleaning of the cup which he will use, and if he is so inclined may attend to the cleaning himself.

The quick lunch stands are provided with automatic spraying nozzles for cleaning glass and china and insure perfect cleanliness. No rubber tubing is used to conduct liquids, silver tubes being employed for the purpose. The service is run by clockwork.

In place of the ordinary counter there are long rows of ornate cabinets ranged along one side of the room, which have a shelf projecting at a convenient height, above which glasses and cups are placed. Above these there are two and a number of slots to receive the cups. When the customer has decided what sort of a drink he wants—coffee, tea, chocolate or beer—he inserts his coin in the slot and receives the regulated quantity. The cold drinks—lemonade, soda water and all sorts of "soft drinks"—are kept in glass vessels and the hot drinks in nickel tubes surrounded by a hot water bath, which is heated by gas.

But the establishment is not limited to drinks and the hungry may have a complete breakfast, sandwiches and cakes kept in a glass stand, circular in shape, which is covered with a glass bell. Each bell contains about a dozen sandwiches, and the purchaser indicates his choice by dropping his coin into the slot opposite the kind he wants, and the sandwich revolves itself to bring his choice to the opening where he may take it out. The sandwiches are neatly provided with beef, chicken and other meats.

The quick lunch is nothing new in Germany, though, as any person will know who has made a railroad trip between Berlin and Copenhagen by way of Warrumunde. A man who made the trip several years ago said:

"The quick lunch came from Dan-mark and stopped at a little place on the German frontier at about noon.

Everybody was hungry, and the American contingent was disappointed when the conductor shouted, 'Fund minuten' minuten.' We knew that five minutes would not give us time for a meal, and we went to the buffet. The buffet was a long counter, and the waiter behind it was a Japanese. Everybody ordered a plate of food, and the waiter brought it to me. The food was good, and the waiter was very polite. I thought that the quick lunch was a very good thing. The fact that we were all hungry and that the waiter was so polite made me feel that the quick lunch was a very good thing.

The quick lunch is a very good thing. It is a very good thing.

The quick lunch is a very good

thing. It is a very good thing.

The quick lunch is a very good

thing. It is a very good thing.

The quick lunch is a very good

thing. It is a very good thing.

The quick lunch is a very good

thing. It is a very good thing.

A BEGGAR'S ARTIST.

LIVES IN A CELLAR AND PAINTS

SIGNS FOR MENDICANTS.

He Makes a Good Living and Would Have

Be a Painter for Beggars Than a Beggar

Painter—How the Pictures Are Made and

What He Charges for Them.

A new school of art has been discovered. So far as known, this city has no school of art, but in the cellar of a house in the city, the source whence come the thrilling pictures which the beggar, madman, blind or idiot, displays when he successfully relates just how he was injured and strives to impress upon the charitable how deserving he is of aid.

In one of the shabby streets of the city, away down in a basement, a certain beggar, a traveling painter, is at work. It is a place of business such as would appal the well dressed bachelor, but it is no exaggeration to say that his occupation has no painter would rejoice to receive.

Technique and perspective meet with small consideration at the hands of the artist, the beggar, for such he seems to be. To watch ingress and egress of his patrons would give a stranger the impression that some philanthropist had established a charity hospital in the basement.

When the writer paid a visit to this unique studio the other day, the artist was found sitting in a wicker chair, and a canvas was stretched on the wall, and the artist was painting a picture of a

"It is worthy of mention that in excitement always incident to debate in deliberative bodies not a single breach of decorum has occurred—not an appeal has been taken or a suggestion of appeal been made from any decision of the chair; the disposition of the members through the entire session has manifested to attend strictly to the most fitting sort of enacting good laws and avoiding dangerous legislation in a senseless and honorable manner, with waste of time on trivial things, and independence, intelligence and integrity of the members has been most manifest."

"Of course I realize that there are people who make no distinction between prize light and a sparring exhibition, points, and my sincere wish is that we will overcome their prejudice enough to attend our tournament and be convinced that a scientific sparring exhibition is not degrading."
